

Tell Us a Story

Write your own 2-3 minute "On the Job" play. You may work with one or two other students. You will have one hour to write and practice your play. Do the following:

- Tell your audience where at work your play takes place--for example in the break room, in the boss's office, or in front of your building.
- Give your audience some background (important things that happened before your play starts).
- Your play must say something to the audience—for example, solve a problem at work or tell a funny story.
- Use slang words from our other lessons and idioms from your list.
- Use a narrator to begin and/or end your play.

Correct all grammatical mistakes before you begin practicing your play.

When you finish writing your script, copy it onto flip-chart paper and cut it into strips. Give your strips to your teacher. Afterward, your teacher will give your sentence strips to another pair of students. They will put your sentences in the correct order.

Tell Us a Story

Write your own 2-3 minute "On the Job" play. You may work with one or two other students. You will have one hour to write and practice your play. Do the following:

- Tell your audience where at work your play takes place--for example in the break room, in the boss's office, or in front of your building.
- Give your audience some background (important things that happened before your play starts).
- Your play must say something to the audience—for example, solve a problem at work or tell a funny story.
- Use slang words from our other lessons and idioms from your list.
- Use a narrator to begin and/or end your play.

Correct all grammatical mistakes before you begin practicing your play.

When you finish writing your script, copy it onto flip-chart paper and cut it into strips. Give your strips to your teacher. Afterward, your teacher will give your sentence strips to another pair of students. They will put your sentences in the correct order.